CANCER SERVICES OF NORTHEAST INDIANA ♦ JUNE 2017 ♦ VOL 74 ♦ ISSUE 2

Honest conversation on intimacy

As more people survive cancer, they are increasingly identifying issues of sexual health, intimacy, body image, and intimate relationships as a concern following their diagnosis and treatment. Of course, these areas have tremendous impact on the quality of life for many, if not most of us.

Recognizing the importance of having frank and honest conversations about sexual health and intimacy, Cancer Services began providing educational programs and found there to be great interest from our clients. In the fall of 2015, we offered a symposium for professionals on the topic of Sexuality and Cancer. It became clear to us that this is an area of support that is highly needed.

Cancer Services responded to this need by sending one of our client advocates to the University of Michigan's School of Social Work to earn her certificate in sexual health counseling. We are proud to announce that after a year of rigorous education and training, Denise Glasser has completed this certificate and has begun seeing clients to address these important topics.

"...I've found that most people are relieved to finally have the opportunity to talk about this openly..."

"I've found that most people are relieved to finally have the opportunity to talk about this openly and begin to find solutions," Denise reports. "While sex does have a physical component, it is also about intimacy, relationships and body image. My role is to help define the issues, educate about ways to address them, and support our clients and their significant others through finding solutions."

As we continue to support the best quality of life for those diagnosed with cancer, Denise's expertise and counseling in the area of sexual health helps meet yet another need our clients have identified.

If you would like more information or to make an appointment, call Cancer Services to speak with your advocate or to talk with Denise directly.

Client Advocate, Denise Glasser recently earned her certificate in sexual health counseling at the University of Michigan.

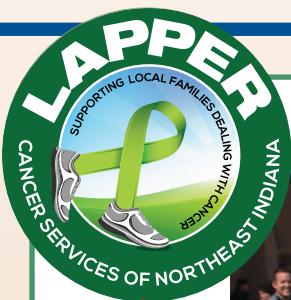

Cancer Services' new physician liaison

David Trenkner, M.D.

Cancer Services of Northeast Indiana is honored to welcome oncologist David Trenkner, M.D., as Physician Liaison.

Dr. Trenkner, who practiced radiation oncology in Northeast Indiana for nearly 30 years and retired in 2015, will utilize his experience and expertise to strengthen Cancer Services' relationships with physicians and healthcare professionals in the community. He also will assist with the evaluation and development of new programs and services to ensure families touched by cancer receive high-quality support services.

Side by side. Every step of the way.
