Cancer Services and Fort Wayne Derby Girls partner for 5th Annual Bust a Move

Cancer Services of Northeast Indiana and The Fort Wayne Derby Girls are partnering to host the 5th Annual Bust A Move Auction and Fundraiser to benefit women with breast cancer in our community on Friday, October 5, 2012, at the Fort Wayne Museum of Art.

For Bust a Move, local artists, breast cancer survivors, and derby girls have volunteered their talents and their bodies to create unique, inspiring cast representations of the female bust and the emotions associated with breast cancer. Local artists will modify the casts, using various artistic mediums, to create outstanding works of art. The art pieces will be auctioned at the event on October 5.

“Every year, the artists raise the bar and every year, I am blown away by the artwork,” said event chair Amber Recker. “I have no doubt that we will raise even more money than in previous years for women with breast cancer in our community.”

Additional information about the event, including this year’s artists, is available online:

About Fort Wayne Derby Girls Inc.

Fort Wayne is at the pinnacle of Indiana’s roller derby resurgence. Its mission is to encourage community involvement from all socio-economic groups in Fort Wayne and its surrounding communities. The league embodies the strength, courage, and vitality of Fort Wayne women but also serves to provide another form of semi-professional athletic entertainment to the Summit City. Since October 2005, the Fort Wayne Derby Girls, a non-profit, volunteer-run organization, has raised over $60,000 for local women's and children's charities.
